A TRIP THROUGH MANITOBA AND
THE NORTHWEST:

After a night of sweet repose we are aroused at Chapleau by the porter coming through the train and calling out "Refreshments." We are now 615 miles from Montreal at a dining station named above. Some get up and go and get some eatables, but the most of us sleep on, for it is not yet daylight. By the time we reach Mississauga it is light and on looking eastward the golden sunrise is reaching towards the zenith and throwing its rays of light about us. Such glorious sunrise as it is. It is beyond the power of pen to picture to one the magnificence of the scene that greets our gaze as we emerge from a dense forest of fir and tamarack.

"The sky is ruddy in the east,
The earth is gray below,"

And, spectral in the mountain side,

The gray-red granite show.

The scene has changed. Now as we fly along we see beautiful lakes with little rock-bound islets and rivers, where glides the Indian's canoe in search of fish and furs. The shores are high and rugged and covered with dark forests. Near the last-named place we cross Dog Lake, where a short portage connects the water flowing southward into Lake Superior with those flowing northward into Hudson Bay. This place is known to some as the "Divide." Furs from the far north are brought here for sale and shipment.

Here a novel spectacle awaits us. It was as you remember in the early morning. As soon as the train stopped all was astir. Out of each end of the cars poured men in all parts of dress, to get washed down on the lake shore, which was very near. For a quarter of a mile along the water's edge was to be seen men squatting down washing; each loaning his neighbor the use of his soap, towel, comb, or if he needed shaving, his razor and stop.

By the time the many coal begrimed faces were washed, though in many cases not clean nor white, the screech from the engine hurries all aboard again and we are off.

Beyond Mississauga, and for 60 miles we pass through many deep cuttings in rock of a greenish blue. We now partake of breakfast, consisting of canned meats and fruits with a good cup of hot tea or coffee, heated on the car stove. To say there was a crowd about that stove would not convey the idea intended. Tins in all shapes from a tea-pot to a basin including pails of all kinds. When at Grasset we look to the north, and there lies the beautiful lake of Kabinagamang with its waters glistening in the sun shine. Soon we find ourselves nearing White River, a refreshment station. Here are situated the yards where stock en route to Manitoba are rested. Here we stopped half an hour. Some went to the hotels two to get their much longed for "grog," while others went to the general stores and got many things of usefulness, as all green travellers are beginning to find out what they want. Some bought pails, others cups, etc., while many bought lemons at ten cents each and canned fruits from Picton at from forty cents to a dollar a can. Quite a few of us gathered around a little Indian who sang and danced for us much to the surprise and amusement of us all. Among his songs he sang "The white man to the forest came," which caused many to give the

and on the other one looks down for a hundred feet or more. After leaving Gravel River we verge inland for a time, but soon we are on the lake shore again. Here it reminds one of the Sandbanks on Lake Ontario in P. E. Co., with its gravel shore and pebbly bars.

At Mazokama the train stopped for half an hour, during which time some of us boys got off and took possession of the station master's croquet grounds. Here we saw a few patches of potatoes. We were glad to let our eyes again rest upon plants of cultivation. In the dim distance we can see perpendicular red rocks rearing up hundreds of feet. By the time we reach Neigdon, the moon is up high enough so that it is "almost as light as day." This is a neat little town, nestling beneath a high mountain of rock while in front lies the beautiful bay of the same name.

Quite a few settlers' cabins are discernible in the distance and along the road. We now get tea which consisted of dried meats, canned gages, bread without butter, and lemonade for drink. By the time tea is over we are in Port Arthur—population, 6000—the terminus of the Eastern Division. It was formerly called Prince Arthur's Landing and is situated on the west shore of Thunder Bay, an important arm of Lake Superior. It is the chief Canadian port on the lake. Large numbers of both steam and sail power arrive and depart daily. It is beautifully lighted by electricity. These are the first electric lights we have seen since we left Toronto. We feel as though we were at last getting over the great wilderness that separates Ontario from Manitoba. The fine C.P.R. steamships ply between here and Owen Sound. The town has a large elevator, extensive docks, and a well established trade. It has many substantial buildings, including a number of hotels. From the beauty of its situation its accessibility, and the opportunities for sport, both inland and on the water, it has become a favorite resort for tourists during the summer months. A long promontory of basaltic rock on the opposite side of the bay called the "Sleeping Giant," terminates in Thunder Cape. We could see in the moonlight the outlines of this rock as it reared itself against the horizon. Behind the cape lies the famous Silver Islet, which has yielded almost fabulous wealth. Pie Island, another mountain of columnar basalt, divides the entrance to the bay, which is flanked on the west by Mackay Mountain, overlooking Fort William. Here we set our watches back an hour in conformity with central time. We also reckon by the twenty-four hour system, thus the a.m. and p.m. are abolished and the hours from noon to midnight are counted as from 12 to 24 o'clock. A short run takes us to Port William, population 2000, a bright little town of over a hundred years standing, being it a Hudson Bay Co.'s post. The engine house was once a fort and furnace. The three elevators of 250,000 bushels capacity overshadow the whole town, and as we looked at the inanimate objects it reminded us of some monstrous work beyond the comprehension of man's mind. The Kaministiquia River, a broad deep stream with firm banks affords extraordinary advantages for lake traffic. Immense quantities of lumber and coal are handled here. To prevent accidents to pedestrians an elevated walk crosses the S.P.R. Here are R.R. workshops and the usual buildings and sidings incident to a divisional point. Here we get a fresh supply of ice, which is always in demand by travellers at this season. After an hour's rest here we pull out with expectations of seeing Winnipeg on the morrow. After the usual formalities of music, games, dancing and tricks, we "turn in." We are now 998 miles from Montréal and 1908 from Vancouver. Here dear readers we leave you at 10:40 o'clock, Aug. 6th.

LENNOX AND PRINCE EDWARD.

It must be admitted that the result of the voting in the two counties above named is a disappointment to the reform party and the advocates of reciprocity. The defeat of Dr Platt by a large majority in Prince Edward county is a larger surprise than the election of Wilson in Lennox

NEWS FROM THE COUNTRY.

Desmond.

Mr. J. W. Bell's little daughter Annie Ross is critically ill with inflammation of the lungs.

The trustees of Methodist church here have been making some necessary repairs making it a gem, they intend holding a sugar social in the school on Tuesday night 16th inst. Pure maple sugar made from the pure maple syrup furnished by a kind lady, and a good programme guaranteed.

Quarterly meeting services here last Sabbath, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Allen to a full house.

Miss Pyke is held in high esteem as a school teacher and citizen.

Camden Township

Sabbath School Associations held first Annual meeting in Methodist Church Camden East, Feby. 3rd, at two o'clock p.m.

Rev. Mr. Tomblin of Yarker, was called to take the chair. The president, Dr. Duff being absent.

Rev. Mr. Tomblin gave a suitable opening address.

Rev. Mr. Williams, of Camden East, gave an address of welcome. Minutes of last meeting of Dec. 17th read received and adopted.

Officers for the ensuing year elected as follows:

President H. R. Duff, M. D., Newburgh, Vice President? All ministers and Sabbath School Supts. of the Township.

Adolphustown.

Well, Mr. Editor, what has become of the Adolphustown scribe? Not seeing any news from here for some time, I thought I would drop you a line. The election is all over, and still we have to climb the high walls of protection. The landlady of the Windsor is too much story to be loyal, but she does not know that the C. P. R. runs into New York, nor that Canada is robbed. The Tories do not care so long as Uriah got in. Mr. Fred Membray was nearly "killed" because he voted Reform, and after all Mr. Scott did for him, when he was here, I suppose with boddle. Still we think it is only a year in for Mr. Wilson.

For coats were cheap here last week. A man found one in the wagon house. Well Mr. Editor, the Tory cry is still "loyalty" but loyalty has nothing to do with the Canadian boys who are going to the United States. The boddle flew around through Adolphustown by the Tory party, and more than that they bought coats and promised a couple of officers in the village.

Yarker.

Going to Washington, my! my! what are these Conservatives coming to? and Mackenzie Bowell, the great Orangeman and loyalist? and to negotiate a trade treaty. You loyal sons of Britian are you going to tolerate this high handed outrage when you by your ballots have voted for protection. Can you swallow such deceit as this?

Rink notes—The skating rink has been located further up the river to better ice. Miss Philips and Norah West had a toe frozen while skating. Mr. Woodhouse badly sprained his ankle. Miss Moles while skating backwards fell hurting herself. Mr. Allen Silver who stands in his socks over six feet high, is known as the powerful mogul escort of the ladies.

Moscowites—what became of that team you were to send to Yarker in connection with the tea meeting.

Mr. Geo. McDonald has purchased for Mr. T. Carroll, the Commercial Hotel from Abel Scott, executor of the Walroth estate.

Farmers are complaining over no opposition in grain buying as it is one man power in grain circles in these countries. Take it to Napanee it goes to Richardson, sold along line of B. #### Odessa.

John Elson, Amherst Island, was in week.

C. W. Timmerman has returned home.

John Sharpe, of the 3rd con., a widower
sixty summers and an equal number of w
was married on Wednesday, 3rd inst., t Eliza Davy, of this township. We ex-gratulations and wish the blushing young every success.

One of the most amusing incidents of t
in this poll was that a tempt of a well Yarkerite to vote on the 10th was generally to be his brother's name. The girl in question is of an autoeratic disposition eenee to be greatly disposed to think she's in world entitled to wear a man position and standing." He said he felt quite sure that if Mr. Allison were there he would have no objection to her voting. The action inexorable, and our friend from Yar-ker left for home without voting. Have your name added at the election, Wesley.

Though a little late, we just sent hearty extending congratulations to D. L. Tam-worth, son of our esteemed citizen D. Lark-on, his receiving the honor of appointment as County auditor by Warden elect Patterson.

The anniversary service of the Y.P.S.C.E. on Sunday evening was a good success. There was a large number young people out. The pastor delivered an inspiring and eloquent address from the text, "A man's work is his word."

Lennox has gone Tory. By his side was proclaimed king. The country has been divided in the position of the proverb quoted in Holy Writ:

"The dog hath turned to his own vomit again and the sow that was washed is wallowing in the mire." The fight here was bitter, the Liberals had a hard struggle with boddle and whiskey. The corruption practised by the Wilsonites was something fearful, being sufficient to bring the blushes of shame to any honest Canadian.

Tory delegates were present, and the usual position and money was as flush. Mr. Connelly's drafts on the Government. The returning officers in this township seemed to be under the impression that they were appointed in the sole interest of the Government. At this poll it was impossible to get fair play and Tory agents were upheld in a deliberate attempt to bluff and frighten voters from the poll. From No. 8 come reports of a similar nature. Ballots were given to persons of a similar nature. Ballots were given objection. As far as their excuse for their meanness a poor cripple was denied access to the poll and was compelled to crawl along the door by the use of his arms. From another poll comes news of a deliberate attempt to shift the ballot-box, showing how desperate the attempt to win the seat. A victory won by such means may please the dear Tory soul, but the tactics are anything but commendable for men who brag so much of their patriotism and who made such a loud cry of corruption against their opponents, based on facts and others
opinions equally as void of truth.

As a result of Jim Metcalfe's slang, Billings-gate harangued Odessa gave Allison the magnificent majority of 49. Mr. Allison came within six votes of polling two to one.

A laughable scene was witnessed on polling
day. Men were seen entering the barn of a prominent Scott Act orator, for the purpose of receiving their share of adulterated creek water, that flowed so freely in Wilson's behalf. This is a positive fact, as we can give the names of several who drank there and voted for Allison.

Pleasant Recognition of Merit.

On Monday evening last the chairman of the board of education with other representative members of the board and a few of the public school teachers called at the residence of Miss
S. Ayleworth, and presented her with a purse with $75 in gold, as a recognition of her having completed a quarter of a century's service in said school, nearly the whole of the time having been spent in the primary department. The testimonial was given on behalf of the d<sup>o</sup>t
of education, her fellow teachers and the parents

Special Meeting of Town Council.

Town Council met on Thursday afternoon to consider what step should be taken to help rebuild the Gibbard Factory. A proposition is before the council to loan Mr. Gibbard $5,000 for ten years w/out interest, and exemption from taxes for workshop if rebuilt. Mr. Gibbard to employ 14 men and pay out in wages $12,000 annually. Anyone wishing to express their views on this matter should send us a communication on Wednesday next.

LANDS AND WINDING ON LOWLINGS LONG HABITACAGAM. The character of the soil along the route here is entirely useless for agricultural pursuits, being of sand and gravel. The country here flattens out so that we are able to look over the country for many miles and view the many lakes and rivers which in this section are very numerous. Occasionally a rocky uplift is seen of shell rock covered with moss of all colors with a ground-work of green. When timber is seen it is chiefly poplar and spruce. Some very high trestle work is passed over near Heron Bay. Suddenly the country assumes a character of extreme roughness with very deep gorges and heavy cuttings. Along the road before reaching Heron Bay the fire has run through the forests and laid waste to the country. Desolation marks are seen on every side. Soon we are drawing up to Peninsula on Lake Superior. This is a nice little village consisting of hotel, two stores and several other places of public resort, besides the fishing buildings. The prices here are almost outrageous. Soda biscuit, 40 cents; salmon, 30; canned berries, 40; cheese, 20; butter 35; tea 75; bread 35 per loaf, and other things in proportion.

Meals here were sixty cents, and not very good as your humble servant can testify.

Soon we are off again being carried through and around the bold and harsh promontories of the north shore of Lake Superior with deep rock cuttings, viaducts, and tunnels constantly occurring; and at intervals where the railway is cut out of the face of the cliffs, the lake comes into full view. Every variety of rose and picture-suey scenery which the most profuse outpourings of nature's fairest combinations that forest, rock, and water can effect, is there displayed in the versatile beauties and shifting glory of the kaleidoscope. When the lake is to be seen its waters are smooth and unbroken, the heavens soft and clear, save when a cloud of fleecy white fleas floats across its bosom reflecting itself in the placid waters. As we glide along through a constantly shifting succession of exquisite landscapes. Some isles are seen—some large, some too small for a tree that springs from their tiny centre—some showing a bold outline of jagged rock, others resting like fairy baskets of foliage on the breast of the sweet waters. No part of this wonderful scenery should be missed by the traveller.

Passing through Coldwell and Middleton we arrive at Jackfish Station, so-called from the fact that plenty of jackfish (pike) are found here. Near here is seen the finest scenery along the route. After leaving Jackfish we pass through a tunnel and on emerging we are along the waters again. On our right rises the rocks over four hundred feet while below, over a hundred feet lies the placid lake with its wimpling waves kissing the rock bound shore. As we look out upon the lake the lines of Byron come back in startling clearness.

"Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean—roll!"

Ten thousand feet sweep over thee in vain,
Thou glorious mirror, where the Almighty's form
Glosses itself in tempests."

What a contrast! In looking out one window the scene above described is seen, and on looking out the other window is to be seen "Rocks upon rocks they are rearing high, till the tops looks out on the sunny sky."

Soon we pass over a very high trestle and plunge into another tunnel. The rock is of a red color. Huge boulders the size of a barn seem to be hanging over the track and appear as if about to fall upon us. Some draw back in terror at the sight. At 4:08 p.m., Aug. 6th, we arrive at Rossport. Between here and Gravel River some of the heaviest work on the entire line of railway occurs. The constantly changing views on Nipigon Bay are charming. It is now nearing sundown. Such a sunset we never before witnessed. Softly the evening came. The wind lulled down to a whisper. The sun from the western horizon like magician extended his golden wand over the landscape; twinkling vapors arise; while sky and water and forest seemed all on fire at the touch, and melted and mingled together. Hanging between two skies, a cloud with edges of silver, moves lazily along. Soon darkness folds her wing about us. All grows silent save the rushing of the train. As one stands at the platform and stares into the night, o'er our spirits there came a feeling of wonder and sadness—strange forebodings of ill unseen, and that which cannot be compassed. We say all is silent without. Not quite so for we hear the owl as he greets the moon with demoniac laughter. On nearing Gravel River we pass through two tunnels and many deep cuttings some nearly a hundred feet deep, while in other places the road is cut out of the side of the rock, so that

Dr Platt by a large majority in Prince Edward county is a larger surprise than the election of Mr Wilson in Lennox, because the last named county has generally gone conservative during recent years, whereas Prince Edward has been inclined to vote liberal. In the absence of reports from the county it is difficult to explain the increase of one hundred and seventy-one in the Conservative majority in Prince Edward since March. Lennox, which returned Mr Allison, reformer, by a majority of 57, in March last, elected Mr Wilson, conservative, yesterday by 31 majority. In view of the fact that the conservative electors of Ontario are willing to condone extravagance and corruption in federal affairs, they cannot with very good grace ask the electors in the sister province of Quebec to become desperately agitated over the charges against the late government of that province. No doubt the result of the voting will be accepted by the ministerialists as a victory for Mr Haggard and an emphatic endorsement of his appointment to the leadership of the Ontario conservatives. The farmers of this province complain that the policy of high taxation and trade restriction is burdening and crippling their industry, but so long as they are willing to vote for the advocates and upholders of that policy, even for the sake of local or temporary advantage, they have no right to find fault with their condition. They who would free themselves must strike the blow.—Ottawa Free Press.

SPECIMEN BRICK.

While the minister of justice and his organ pretend to be very anxious to "elevate the standard of public morality" and to purify public life, their candidates and political agents are endeavoring to win elections by the wholesale purchase of constituents. What a farce it is to unseat and disqualify a member of parliament for giving a voter a glass of whiskey or helping to get a poor man employment, when ministers of the crown and ministerial candidates are able to publicly offer gigantic bribes of public money to constituents to induce them to elect supporters of the party in power. An election is being held in Queen's county, Nova Scotia, this week. The candidates are Mr. F. G. Forbes, Liberal, who was lately unseated, and Mr. A. B. Morine, Conservative—the latter a member of the Newfoundland legislature. Mr. Morine does not believe in using ambiguous language when appealing for votes. He is a True Tupperian. He tells the people of Queen's plainly that if they elect him they will get plenty of public money for railway subsidies, wharves, breakwaters, etc., but that the government will boycott the county if Mr. Forbes is returned. Here are a few extracts from Mr. Morine's campaign speeches:

"Thompson's railroad promise last spring was conditional on Freeman being elected, and the local subsidy is conditional on the Dominion subsidy being granted."

"If you (the people) want a railroad send me; if not send Forbes."

"I am authorized to say, if you elect Forbes you get nothing at all and will also lose the subsidy granted for the 75 miles which expires on July 1 next, but send me and I will get the old subsidy renewed and the balance due for the 30 miles."

"The government favors its own supporters and Forbes is in opposition and can get nothing."

"You ought to vote for me as I am on the government side and can get anything you like."

"Mr. Forbes got nothing in 12 months; try me and I will get anything you want as the government has sent me here."

In reply to the charge that we would have to fight against White and Kaulback for the Annapolis line, Mr. Morine said:

"He would give them a sop by compromising with them and building the cross-line to New Germany for them after building the Annapolis line."

"The trade of the country depends not on government policy of reciprocity, but on the railroad."

"It was none of our business whether it pays or not as the bondholders will alone be the sufferers."

"I am here at the request of Sir John Thompson and am running for him as a government candidate."

"Any man in opposition, as Mr. Forbes is, an abler man than he is, can get nothing for your breakwaters, so much needed but send me if you want aid for these public works granted."

The minister of justice pretends to be horrified over the revelations of McGreevyism but wherein does McGreevyism differ from the policy of Thompsonism propounded by Mr. Morine?

How is it that Corby's X L old rye whiskey is without a revenue stamp over the cork; is this another mode taken by the government to draw on for election purposes? It looks like it. Corby's influence and whisky will be used to the utmost to defeat Mr. Aylsworth. The only wonder is, taking into consideration the weapons used by the government, that there is a Reformer in the House of Commons. Just think of it electors that $110,000 was given in Quebec in 28 constituencies in the '87 election, and you can then form an idea how Mr. Wilson was elected in Lennox.

Eye witnesses say they never saw a closer call.

It is the opinion of many had Mr. Laurier been able to come to Napanee Mr. Allison would have been elected. Because he did not come stories circulated the report that sickness was feigned, and falsely stated that he was mixed up the Mercier affair and he dare not come to Ontario. The men who made this statement could not be trusted under oath, and they would try to blast the character of anyone who dare differ with them, if not a story.

A blaze was discovered on the roof of Mr. Jonathan Elliott's residence, by hard work it was extinguished. Cupola on the Wheel Factory was noticed in a blaze, through the prompt action of the employees it was put out. The residence of Barney Wood on the Gore was burned to the ground Sunday afternoon, while Barney and wife were away from home. The fire originated from the stove pipes taking fire. Upstairs was stored the furniture of Mr. Baker. Mr. Wood's son was home sick, but was unable to save anything. The family are frantic over the loss of their home and effects. No insurance.

Spencer Hill.

Well, Mr. Editor, the great contest is over with all its attendant labor and anxiety. The private caucus, and the public meetings no more calls us from our comfortable fire sides into the cold of a winter evening.

The Tory orators who labored so earnestly to convince the simple minded farmer that the hard times of which do much was being said, existed only in the imagination of the wicked grit, have made their best bow to old Lennox, and gone to preach to other electors the gospel of high tariffs and transatlantic markets.

The Tory boulder who infested our concessions and sidelines with such fascinating smile on his benevolent features, and still more convincing evidence of his charitable tendencies in the palm of his polluted paw has left us too, perhaps to philosophize upon the advantages and benefits, possible to be secured for his country by a free and plentiful distribution of stealeys at Ottawa.

The man on the hill will, doubtless, in the overflowing of his joyous soul, receive grace to enable him to forgive his minister for voting so perversely on election day.

I see by the returns that Selby gave the largest majority of any polling subdivision in the county.

Mr. Allison when he recovers sufficiently should telephone his first smile to his Selby friends.

The Second Bachelor's at Home.

The second of the series of at Homes given by the Bachelors of Napanee was held in the Town Hall last evening, and it was by far the most brilliant event of the season and completely eclipsed all the affairs of the kind ever held in former years. The hall was beautifully decorated the orchestra was grand and the arrangements were perfect and the stewards are greatly to be congratulated on the happy result of their efforts. Among these present we were pleased to notice the genial face of the Rev. A. Jarvis. Napanee society is looking forward to the 3rd and last at home which takes place on the 25th inst.

UNRESTRICTED RECIPROCITY.

After careful consideration, we have decided to give our patrons (regardless of political differences) the benefits of a full and unrestricted reciprocity in all kinds of patent medicines and groceries. We shall hew the prices down to such a thin margin that any attempt of our protective policy competitors to successfully compete with us will be seen through at a glance.

Our shooting iron is loaded to the muzzle and every time we pull the trigger, it means a shower of big bargains to all who will give us their patronage. Things have changed since "Hannah died," and we have "struck"—we have either got to do business or pull down the sign.

Come and see us, and don't forget to read and remember the price of every article quoted below, as it means hopeful times to the consumers of this country:

LARGE portion of the silver in treasury here is American, and it passes freely enough, without discount.
Where's the harm of getting Reciprocity and having some more of it. It is surprising that our "loyal" patriots are only too glad to get hold of Yankee dollars.

SOME people say Mr. Wilson's majority only cost the country one hundred dollars per head, while others aver
that the cost is nearly double that.
Your simple minded Conservative says money could not have been spent by Mr. Wilson because he had it not.

No satisfactory reason has yet been given by the Tories of this county for the presence of certain persons in Lennox during the past few weeks. We do not refer to Organiser Birmingham whose mission is understood, but to quieter workers than even he, and who could apparently use more weighty arguments to convince the wavering
man who puts a price upon his vote.

No sooner was the election over in Lennox than Mr. Wilson's friends began industriously circulating a rumour that no boodle was used. This statement was however received with such roars of incredulous laughter, that the idea of creating a favourable impression in this way has been dropped.
Even the defeated grits could not help
guffawing at such a ridiculous statement.

THERE are a number of Conservatives in Lennox who in voting for Mr. Wilson, not only broke their promise to support Mr. Allison, but also voted against their convictions. They know the country as they say "going to the dogs," but party allegiance at the eleventh hour secured another straight Tory vote. Others were "influenced" by means of which we have not heard the last. But the most surprising feature of the contest is that farmers can still be found to "go it blind" and trust to a continuance of the N. P. for prosperity.

WHEN it is taken into consideration that the government is endeavouring to buy up constituents wholesale by promises of public works, such as a five million dollar canal in Soalanges and "anything you want" in Queen's, the wonder is that Liberals are able to elect a member at all. Then there is the buying of the individual voter as practised in Kingston, Prince Edward,
and Lennox, which is debasing and demoralising the people to such an extent that it is actually a fact that voters on the Conservative side are heard to exclaim, "Let the country go to the dogs," meaning of course that they were indifferent as to what happens so long as their party is triumphant.

When Mr. Meredith started his crusade against the French language and Separate schools, he probably did not dream that the principal result of his agitation would be to make his entrance into the federal cabinet an impossibility.

THE KINGSTON DOCK CONTRACT
Mr. Nicholas Connolly had a long inter-

the final completion of the Kingston grav-ing dock.

Not only do the British trade returns
show that the imports of eggs from Canada
into the United Kingdom during the past two years were ridiculous, small, notwithstanding the cackling of those who insist that Europe is the natural market for our fruit, but those who have been engaged in the business of shipping fruit to England say they have lost money. At the annual meeting of the Central Farmers' Institute in Toronto on Wednesday, Mr. Wilson, of Seaford, who has often been referred to as an authority upon the subject of egg shipments to England, related some of his experiences. He said he had on an experimental shipment to England realized four cents per dozen less for his eggs than he would have obtained had he sent them to New York. On several of his shipments to England, Mr. Wilson said he had lost heavily through hot weather and he had yet to find the steamship companies which would fit up refrigerators and charge for the space taken. They all made the shipper fit up the refrigerators and then charge for the space taken for every trip whether anything was sent or not. "So long as the McKinley tariff stands against the Canadian hen," said Mr.
Wilson, "We will have to make up our minds to take less money for the products of the hen. The English market is not as nor as steady, and it is too far away. We cannot send eggs from here as cheap as they can from France. From a lengthened experience with English dealers, I can confidently say that there is no nation on the face of the earth that is prepared to pay so large a price for a first class article in a first class condition, but the distance is against us. I suppose that I have shipped more eggs than any two other Canadian dealers, and I feel that the egg trade with England is not a success." Such is the experience of a practical egg-shipper who has experimented at his own cost to find out the value of the British market. Canadian cannot be shipped profitably to England.—Ottawa Free Press.

OH, What a Cough!
Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of the more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourself if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough.
It never fails.

The Ottawa Free Press says:—It is evident from the despatches sent from Washington to the leading United States papers that the purpose of the proposed new pilgrimage of the Dominion cabinet ministers to the Capital of the American republic is thoroughly understood there.
The correspondent of the New York Herald says that the Dominion Tory leaders are in search of "politics for home consumption" and that no proposition short of complete unrestricted reciprocity will be entertained by the United States government.
It is possible that the three ministers may become enlightened during the voyage, and consent to a plan for the complete abolition of all restraints upon commerce between the two countries. By so doing they will of course, incur the hostility of the combi-nates and monopolists, but they will deserve well of the country. The Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal
(the leading organ of the Harrison administration in New England) speaks of the Canadian ministers who are going to Washington as "unbidden guests," and says that while there is nothing to prevent their coming they will return as empty handed as they did last spring unless they make very different propositions from those now upon their programme; and that Mr.
Blaine has stated within the past two days that nothing has been done to renew the conferences which the Canadian government has sought. The same correspondent says that the Washington administration has not forgotten the deception practised
by the Conservative leaders upon the people of Canada last winter when they untruthfully stated that overtures looking to a reciprocity treaty had been made by the United States government. It is therefore evident that President Harrison and his friends have no confidence whatever in the sincerity of the Dominion ministers professed anxiety for reciprocity on reasonable terms. Reciprocity only in such articles as Canadian combinates are willing to place upon the free list is out of the question. Such an arrangement would be unfair to both countries.

An open Letter to the Farmers.

GENTLEMEN.—In my canvassing for the find that there is a report current among the farmers of this vicinity that I have retired from business. Such is not the case. True taken from me because I could not see my way clear to take in a partner (named by the

was not enough to be made to pay the needs of two families out of the business I informed the agent such. Upon being told that my contract was annulled, I immediately set to securing the best lines of Seed Drills, Cultivators, Mowers, Reapers, and Rakes that was to be found, and which were highly recommended by many farmers of this vicinity.

CHAPTER II.

When Master Harry found time to think about things he began to see that the helpful Hump had been less generous than he had at the first blush appeared. That the champagne turned out to be utterly abominable,
and that the cigars were worth something like a quarter of their professed value,
may have helped the process of enlightenment. Even without their aid he could see that to pay eight hundred and fifty pounds
for a loan of five hundred for three months
was to buy a temporary relief rather dearly. He found that to fill one hole he had dug a larger, and being in the main a reasonable young fellow, he took the matter seriously to heart and cast about in his own mind and in the world at large for means whereby he might amend at once his ways
and his financial position.

He had a little surface classical learning and a pretty knack of turning verses. He had actually been already in print, and readers of one of the society journals knew to whom to attribute certain elegant lines addressed to Ruthia, and signed H. W. He had a sort of vague notion that literature was one of the ways to wealth, an idea which says something for the sanguine turn of his mind and for his inexperience.

He was on fairly intimate terms with the editor of the journal in question, and before his financial arrangement with Mr.
Whale was a week old he called at the editorial office with a little bundle of manuscript which he had selected from the trifles of the last half a dozen years. The editor glanced at them and tossed them lightly about with an apparent sense of their value which was strongly out of proportion with the author's. This we would do perhaps, and perhaps this other; as for the rest—well, he would look them over.
He might find a corner for them. The budding litterateur suggested payment
said something in a vague and general way about the necessity of buckling to at one thing or another, and expressed his resolution to abide by the belles-lettres, for which he was modestly convinced that he had a native aptitude.

In effect he and the editor did come to actual terms, and the young gentleman found himself engaged on probation to produce prose and verse on society topics,
and to supply paragraphs from his own personal knowledge of society people at former constituency and on the 25th in the last named, Mr. Harwood will again be the Liberal candidate in Vandrenil, and Mr. Mathieu a strong local man nominated in Two Mountains, which was only held by the government by reason of the late Mr. Daoust's great personal popularity.

In a formal letter to Mr. Clarkson, chairman of the Republican national committee, Mr. Blaine states that he is not a candidate for the Presidency, and that his name will not go before the Republican national convention for the party nomination. Mr. Blaine's refusal to accept nomination probably means the re-nomination of the old Republican ticket, Harrison and Morton, and this year's Presidential contest will be fought out practically upon the lines established in the campaign of 1888.

On Tuesday Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, M. P., ex-premier of Canada, fell upon a slippery sidewalk in Toronto and suffered injuries of a dangerous character. This news will be received with deep regret throughout the Dominion. The veteran statesman who led the government of Canada from 1873 until 1878 won the respect of political friends and opponents alike. He has worn himself out in the service of his country. As Mr. Mackenzie has been in feeble health for some years and is now seventy years of age, there are grounds for fearing the worst as a result of his fall on Tuesday.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST HASTINGS,

The Daily Ontario says:—You are of course aware of the result of the election contest in Prince Edward and Lennox on Thursday last, and a majority of you heard of it with much regret, as it seems to put off still further the day you so much hope for, when you will have free access to the great American market. But while you may be aware of the result of the contest you may not be fully cognizant of the manner in which that result was brought about. You, of course, know that Tory convined no voters. When Tory spouters tell you intelligent farmers that protection enhances the value of farm produce, that it is the American consumers and not yourself that pay the duties on barley, eggs, horses, etc., that the British market is your best and most natural market, and reciprocity would rather injure than benefit the farming community, you can see the fallacy of their reasoning and you know how absurd their contentions are. Nor can the Tories appeal to you on the excellence of their record or on the purity of their administration. You all know that the government for the past decade has been most corrupt, and that they have been retained in power only by the most reprehensible means.

How then was the contest in Prince Edward won? By the lavish use of money and whiskey. It is known that liquor was dispensed at the Point in limitless quantities. It is known that it was distributed all through the county, and more especially in Ameliasburgh where I X L flowed like water. In the city of Belleville right ad joining the market square, there was a whiskey den where whiskey and beer was kept, and from which after the election, a load of kegs and bottles were carted away. This was kept especially for the benefit of Prince Edward electors, kept up by the stories of Belleville, who went out from this infamous den to go upon the platform to preach political purity, to denounce the corrupt acts of Mercier, to shout about loyalty, which is disgraced by its advocates, to wave the old flag, which is soiled and contaminated by their touch, to cry “God save the Queen,” from mouths unfit to utter her name; using the symbols of purity using the unsullied flag of England to cover their nefarious acts, and trying to divert attention from their infamous tactics by hiding behind our pure and noble Queen.

But these bombastic praters of loyalty—strictly for revenue only, of course—did not depend on whiskey only. They spent money with an unsparring hand and boasted that they had $12,000 for that constituency.

Now the means that were employed in Prince Edward will also be attempted in East Hastings. The tories of Belleville openly boast that they have $10,000 for that riding and do not scruple to state on the streets that they intend to buy the victory for Mr. Northrup, and money and whiskey will be passed around there as freely as in Prince Edward. The advice has been given electors to take the money and then vote as they choose. But the tory manipulators are up to all the tricks of the trade and purpose to obviate that difficulty. They state they will buy men to not vote at all. They can then see that they earn their money and they will tell them that if they offer to vote they will be sworn.

upon the chest and upon the back between the shoulders. It penetrates internally, checks the cold shiverings, relieves the over-gorged lungs, gradually removes the oppression from the chest and restores the obstructed respiration, hitherto so distressingly disagreeable and highly dangerous. In treating this class of diseases, Holloways Pills should always be taken while using his Ointment; they purify the blood, promote perspiration, and allay dangerous irritations.

According to the Lindsay post, Mr. Haggart in a speech at Lindsay last week said: “If we had not the manufacturers in this country what would we have left? Nothing but poor miserable lot of farmers.”

How anxious the supporters of the federal government profess to be to promote trade with Great Britain. At the coming session of parliament it is highly probable that a reform member of the House of Commons will offer a resolution proposing that, with the view of promoting trade between the mother country and Canada, the customs duties upon those classes of articles usually imported from Great Britain be reduced. Watch how quickly the ultra-loyal tory members will vote that resolution down. The combinesters will not allow it to pass.

Perfect Purity.

Perfect purity of the blood is essential to good health. Burdock Blood Bitters will purify the blood and remove all effete matter. B.B.B. cures all diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

At the recent meeting of the Central Ontario Farmers’ Institute a resolution in favor of free trade policy such as that of Great Britain was adopted by a vote of 84 to 26. Let the farmers vote as they “resolute,” and the politicians will soon be obliged to bow to their wishes.

Over A Century Old.

Many cases are known of persons living to be over 100 years old, and there is no good reason why this should not occur. By paying attention to health by using Burdock Blood Bitters when necessary to purify the blood and strengthen the system much may be added to the comfort and happiness of life even if the century mark is not attained.

IT IS WELL KNOWN!

Doctors Recommend it With Pleasure.

Thousands of our Canadian families are ready to sound the praises of Harvard Bronchial Syrup, and extol its many virtues. Whenever used it has proved swift, sure and efficacious in removing all affections of the throat, arising from sudden colds. Its action is almost instantaneous; it is soothing in its effects, healing soreness and irritation; and it gives a strength and elasticity to the throat and bronchial tubes that no other remedy can give. Harvard Bronchial Syrup never fails in giving prompt and satisfactory results. Our doctors take pleasure in prescribing it, and speak favorably of it.

—Mr. Larke, of Oshawa, speaking at Napanee the other evening, in referring to Mr. Laurier’s illness said “it was a pity he could not have the bronchitis for twenty years.” Such sentiments coming from a man like Larke, who is prominent in Conservative circles, should secure for him the execration of every decent, fairminded man. It is a wonder the Conservatives did not pull him off the platform. They must have felt like doing so.—Kincardine Reporter.

five pounds per week or sink to three. Obviously there was no Eldorado here, but for all that it was better than nothing, and Harry felt a glow of conscious rectitude as he emerged upon the street.

He cut the club almost entirely, and he slaved away at his verses, his piquant little society paragraphs, and his occasional small type articles, under the natural and excusable impression that he was bringing about something like a new era in letters, and had at least set his foot on the first rung of the golden ladder.

When this had been going on for about a month he encountered Captain Peter Heaton, who hailed him cordially and dropped the friendliest possible little reminder about Hump’s bill. Heaton was sorry to tell the young fellow that Hump had been very hard hit, and would be certain to want his money up to time. This was a new awaker, for Harry had allowed himself to hope almost with certainty that the bill could be renewed, and had indeed staved off in fancy its final payment to some indefinite distant period when money would be comparatively a matter of indifference to him.

Being thus enforced to look still more widely afield for ways and means, he called to mind a certain C. W. Ferguson, a contractor in a great way of business, and a member of Parliament whom he had met at the house of Lord Hounslow. This Ferguson was a Scotchman—a man of energy and probity, who had one foible. He wanted to associate with people of fashion, and would have given anything for a baronetcy. Young Wynne mixed with the best people in England, and when he came seeking employment in Ferguson’s office he got it without demur, and with it a salary of two hundred pounds per year, which was at least a hundred more than he was worth to begin with. All the ways opened themselves to the young man, but none of them led to immediate fortune. He could command now an income of seven hundred pounds a year, and if he lived like an anchorite and worked like a nigger he could hope to pay off Hump’s bill in about a year and a half. He went on trusting to the chapter of accidents, and was warmly applauded by elderly friends and relatives, who knew nothing of the motive which pushed him to such promising efforts.

Sometimes, when the weight of the Hump slipped for a moment from his shoulders, he felt wonderfully happy and virtuous. He had plenty of capacities, and had such stores of health and spirits that no amount of work seemed to overtax him. The more he did the better he grew to like it, and he quite wondered that he had ever thought himself at ease in the old, idle, vacuous days.

Whilst this new tide of energy and resolve was running he began to think with greater seriousness than ever about the virtues and personal perfections of Miss Inthia Grey. He had known Miss Grey from her childhood, and even in the days of the Eaton jacket and collar had regarded her with thoughts of worship. There had been of course an interregnum in his passion, but when the brutal period of adolescence, at which all girls are despisable in a boy’s eyes, was over, he had come back to the original shrine and had performed secret rites of adoration there. It was she who had prompted his muse and had given life to the verses signed H. W. in the society journal to which he was now a recognized contributor. In the boyish efflorescence of his heart he made a great matter of this and told himself that love had found the way to fame and fortune.

The harder he worked the more he thought of Inthia and the more he thought of Inthia the more he was inspired to labor.

Of course nobody is expected to share a lover’s raptures about his mistress, but making all allowances for loverlike exaggeration, Inthia Grey remains a very charming and beautiful girl. She had at this period of her life a complexion of remarkable purity and brilliance, a color so rich and fine that it would alone have made her noticeable amongst a crowd of young girls of her age. In addition to this she had the softest, shyest, most speaking and amiable eyes, a figure full of delicate grace and vivacity, and a very jewel of a heart. She was not quite eighteen, but Lady McCordquodale, who was supposed to know her as well as anybody, was wont to say that she had under all her airs of quiet submission, a character of unusual firmness and tenacity.

Lady McCordquodale was the eldest and only surviving daughter of the Earl of Bridgebourne. Her ladyship had united herself early in life to a young Scottish clergyman whom the family influence had brought to the dignity of lawnsleeves and a seat in the House of Peers. Miss Grey was a niece of the late bishop, and her ladyship, who had no children, had adopted the girl in her earliest childhood as her own.

The whole family had been aware of Master Harry's infatuation for Lady McCorquodale's beautiful little ward, and when they were no more than children together had thought his devotion and her acceptance of it a very pretty sight to witness, as no doubt it was. As the young people grew up towards manhood and womanhood the case had begun to assume a graver air. There had been one or two informal family councils, at which the position of affairs had been discussed. It was admitted that if anything should come of the evident preference the young people showed for each other, the advantages were all on Intha's side. Lady McCorquodale made no secret of the fact that she meant to leave her money to the girl. The late bishop had been a saving man, and outside the publicly-announced benefactions enforced by his position had spent next to nothing of his income. Intha would be well-to-do, and Harry, except for the limited fortune of his Uncle Percy, would leave him, would have nothing. It would be a brilliant match for the boy therefore, and by no means a brilliant match for the girl. Still the whole thing was in the family, and there was no objection made by the responsible people on either side.

As the time approached for the payment of the bill Harry discovered that he could by no means hope to provide more than a hundred pounds towards meeting it, but he made himself fairly easy about it after the manner of youth, under the belief that the holder would renew. He hardly went near the club; but he had casual meetings with his old friends of the Five-Year-Old, and learned to his great rejoicing that Hump had been in extraordinary vein of late, and had been raking in money by the handful. He had no particular affection for Hump, and only rejoiced in that personage's good luck because it seemed likely to be serviceable to himself. He thought that a creditor with his pockets full of money would be pleased to deal with than one whose pockets were empty—which again may be accepted as a proof of the young man's ignorance of the world.

But when the day of settling approached, and Harry Wynne met Mr. Whale by appointment he encountered an unexpected blow in the first sentence that was spoken.

"I was afraid," said Whale, who was a mournfully confidential man with a high falsetto voice and a habit of boring an interlocutor into corners, "I was afraid that you weren't going to turn up, and I'm so rotten poor that upon my word I don't know where to look for a fiver."

This staggered the debtor for a moment, family. He was delighted to secure Mr. Wynne's custom, and trusted so to satisfy him by their first transaction, as to secure his constant patronage, and, he hoped, the patronage of the family. What did Mr. Wynne desire? A bracelet? Or a riviere, or both? The moment was curiously opportune. He had just that moment received from his principal workman perfect little object of art. It could be worn as a bracelet, as a brooch, as an ornament for the hair, or as a centerpiece for the riviere which accompanied it. The stones were Brazilian, and of the purest water—not the rubbish nowadays imported from the Cape. Mr. Butterfield produced the glittering little object in its morocco case with a lining of sapphire-colored velvet and white satin. Mr. Wynne could observe its extreme neatness, its—its chastity. The price of this charming little object was, it turned out, phenomenal for cheapness. It was only two thousand three hundred pounds, and Mr. Butterfield declared with fervour that no other jeweller in the West End was in a position to offer such an article for less than three thousand.

Mr. Wynne, nervously caressing his incipient moustache, thought it would serve his purpose admirably. Mr. Butterfield rubbed his hands the more at this, and with a confidential certainty into which a little air of the most refined and respectful jocularity was allowed to creep, ventured to think that the lady would approve of it.

An hour later the trinket was in the hands of Mr. Attenborough, and the dread-bill was in ashes in the fire-grate of Harry Wynne's chambers.

Still an hour later Captain Peter Heaton and Mr. Herbert Whale sat in Mr. Butterfield's private room over a glass of singularly fine old Madeira, and amicably arranged the share which should fall to each of them when Mr. Wynne's family should have been compelled to pay for his purchase.

"I am horribly sorry to hear it, old fellow—but—"

"For heaven's sake," said the plaintive Whale, "don't tell me you're not going to do it. I've got nine hundred to find to-morrow, and I don't know more than the man in the moon where to look for the other fifty."

"I thought you'd been winning all over the shop," young Wynne answered, feebly. "I haven't been about the club much lately, but when I have met any of the fellows I've heard of nothing but your luck."

"You haven't heard much of my luck," piped Whale, "for this last three weeks, or if you have I haven't. I'm stone-broke, my boy, and that's all about it. I've got to pay Hoskins of Cork Street nine hundred to-morrow, and if I can't meet the bill I must hand it over to him to-morrow. You know what sort of a fellow he is."

Harry was perfectly ignorant of the reputation enjoyed by Mr. Hoskins, but there was so serious a forboding in Mr. Whale's tone that his heart quailed at him.

"What can he do?" he asked.

"Do?" said Whale, in his anguished falsetto; "he can't do much. He can only run us both into the bankruptcy court, and that means ruin—to me, anyhow. I don't know how your people might take it."

At this point, with an aspect of resigned despair, he sipped at a brandy and soda, bit off the end of a cigar with a sudden malicious spiteful jerkiness, and having apparently forgotten to light, plunged himself moodily into an arm-chair, and did his best to look wretched and disconsolate.

The pigeon had no need to assume any of the airs the rook was acting. He felt quite overwhelmed by this unexpected turn of affairs.

"Look here, Hump," he said in hopeless apology, "I've got a hundred, and if you can stave the thing off for another three months you're welcome to it. I'm awfully sorry, old man," he added with unnecessary contrition. "If I had thought I was putting you into a hole I would never have borrowed the money. I'm earning money now, and I shall earn more as I go on, and if I could only have a year or two to turn round in I could pay it all without bothering anybody."

"My dear boy," Whale responded, with a voice and air of profound wretchedness, "if they'd only give me a month I'm safe as bank. But old Hoskins is worse than a Jew; he'll have his pound of flesh to-morrow, and hell take it off both of us, and that's all about it."

This was a sufficiently unpleasant prospect, and Harry sat in silence to contemplate it. He glanced now and again at Whale, who preserved throughout a very creditable assumption of despair. Nothing was said between them for perhaps five minutes, when the rook suddenly leaned over and laid a hand upon his companion's shoulder. The youngster, looking up seriously, seemed to read a gleam of hope in his eyes.

"I've got an idea, my boy. I think we can work it. Your credit's pretty good, isn't it? You don't owe me much?"

"I don't owe a hundred, outside this," young Wynne answered. "I paid off two or three thousand nine months ago, and I've been going pretty steady since."

"Then we can do it," cried Whale, slapping him on the shoulder with a beaming smile. "Butterfield will do it for us."

"Butterfield?"

"Yes, Butterfield. Conduit Street Jeweller."

"What will he do?"

"He'll let a fellow in your position have a bracelet or two, or something of that sort. You needn't tell him what you want 'em for. He'll simply think it's for some girl or other. Attenborough will do the rest."

As before, any port in a storm; but this particular entrance looked perilous, and the mariner was afraid of it for awhile.

"Butterfield won't bother you for a couple of years," and at that assurance all sense of danger vanished. "You'll have to get seventeen or eighteen hundred pounds' worth;" and at that the victim winced a little. "It won't make any difference, my boy. You can pay interest on it at your uncle's until you redeem it, and then Butterfield will take it back again, and only charge you a commission for it."

"He doesn't know anything about me," said Wynne.

"Oh, yes, he does, my boy. You trust Butterfield. Your name's in Debrett—that's good enough for him."

Master Wynne jumped into a cab, and drove straight to the jeweller's. Mr. Butterfield was the pink of courtesy, and apparently had no suspicion in his nature. He held a pair of white hands up to his chin and smoothed them over the other with a constant caressing motion, expressive of a fluttered deference. Mr. Butterfield had never before had the extreme honor of dealing with a member of the Bridgebournes that Sir Adolphe was concerned in the distribution of the money by which the Government support in this Province was purchased, but no one dreamed that the case could be so clearly proven. The arrival of the western trains was awaited with the morning issue containing an account of the disclosures, and only those who were on hand managed to secure a copy, as they were all sold before reaching the news stands. The full effect of the exposure has not yet been felt, as not all have yet read the text of the charges. But this morning there was a steady stream of politicians to the Windsor, where Sir Adolphe Caron was quartered. From early in the morning there was a council meeting in No. 6 parlor to which only a select few were admitted. From it Sir Adolphe emerged a little after 11 o'clock, and at 11.45 he left by the Canadian Pacific Railway for Ottawa. Sir Adolphe was seen for a moment, and said: "You will read my statement to-morrow. I have nothing to hide. I paid the money in to Mr. McGreevy and took his receipt. I drew the money out and gave my receipt. The whole transaction was legitimate."

SIR ADOLPHE CARON'S DEFENCE.

In a more extended interview Sir Adolphe Caron said:—"I have read in the Globe the letter from Montreal with copies of orders given by me on Mr. McGreevy during the election contest of 1887. These orders were signed by me, and I take the full responsibility of the giving of these amounts to the gentleman named. As stated in the orders, they were for legal or rather for legitimate expenses. They were given under the following circumstances. Friends of mine and myself contributed towards the election fund to defray expenses of candidates running in the interest of the Conservative party. These funds I placed in Mr. McGreevy's hands, as I was often away addressing meetings and conducting the campaign throughout the district, and I have in my possession Mr. McGreevy's receipts for sums larger than the amounts of the orders I gave upon him, so that these orders were not for any money given to Mr. McGreevy from any other source except through me. Several of the candidates were young men who could not be expected to bear the legitimate and necessary expenses incidental to an election contest. I did not know what other funds Mr. McGreevy had nor the sources from which they came. I had charge of the elections in the District of Quebec. If an examination is made it will be found that the amount of the orders I gave to pay money to the several candidates was only fair and reasonable. No amount was given unless previously agreed to by the committee who had charge of the campaign. So far as I know this is the plain and unvarnished truth relating to the matter." Sir Adolphe was accompanied by Hon. J. A. Ouimet to Ottawa. At the consultation this morning were Hon. Senator Tasse, Danseureau, Hon. L. O. Tailleur and J. J. Curran, M.P. Some of them made light of the charges, but others could not conceal their chagrin and indignation. Mr. Curran said, "Think! What can I think when those who wrote the charges know?"

OPINIONS OF LIBERALS.

Last night a large meeting of the Liberal Club was held. First a deputation consisting of Mr. B. J. Coughlin and J. K. Ward was appointed to tender the nomination in Montreal West to Col. Frank Bond in opposition to J. S. Hall, Provincial Secretary, and then the latest developments were discussed. Mr. Coughlin said to day that if a commission were appointed and these charges proved true, as they appeared to be, then the people of Canada could find no reason for keeping in power a party capable of such practices.

Hon. Peter Mitchell said:—"If the Government institute an inquiry—and they cannot refuse—and these charges are proven, it must end in reading out of the party the men who are guilty of these acts. The charges as published in the Globe have an air of veracity, and in many respects the evidence is conclusive. Sir Adolphe, I believe, admits that he deposited this money in the hands of McGreevy and drew it out again. Indeed his receipts prove this. The question for a commission to decide is where this money came from. It is well known Sir Adolphe's private means did not permit of such contributions, and I believe the money came from railways and contractors and was ultimately paid by the people."

The typical Conservative view of the situation, as obtained from a prominent man, is that Sir Adolphe Caron's explanation makes it perfectly clear that he has done nothing to render the Postmaster-General unworthy of occupying his seat in Parliament and that Mr. Laurier's friends are furious because of Mr. Tarte's name being brought in.

THE EVE OF THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain Elected Leader of the Liberal-Unionists in Succession to the Duke of Devonshire—Entertaining the Members at Dinner.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—A meeting was held at Devonshire House yesterday to elect a successor to Lord Hartington, now Duke of Devonshire, as Liberal-Unionist leader in the House of Commons. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, M.P. for Birmingham, who has long been talked of as the successor of Lord Hartington as parliamentary leader, was formally elected to the position.

Mr. Chamberlain, in a speech, said the Duke of Devonshire would still direct the policy of the party. He maintained his position was that of a Liberal. All the opinions he had expressed throughout the fight for the maintenance of the union he still firmly adhered to.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour gave a dinner to their prominent supporters this evening as is customary on the eve of the reopening of Parliament.

The Queen's speech, which is exactly as outlined in Friday's despatches, was read to the guests.

Lord Derby and the Duke of Devonshire gave dinners to the dissident leaders and Sir William Vernon Harcourt entertained the principal Liberals.

The Era of Recrimination Past.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—T. P. O'Connor says in yesterday's Sun:

“The stillness of the Irish political atmosphere just at present indicates, we have reason to believe, the coming, or at least a belief in the coming, of a reunion of the factions. The Irish are a little tired and also a little ashamed of continuing a struggle the cause for which no longer exists. It must be admitted that there is still much bitterness, but a change in the situation is apparent.

“The more rational members of the minority have altered the tone of their speeches and no longer indulge in insults and calumnies. There is a suspicion that this is due to pressure brought upon the mouthpieces of the faction by their own supporters.

“Whether there is to be permanent peace or not it is too early to state with confi

“LET HER GO!”

Were the Last Words of Murderer McElvaine Before His Electrocution.

SING SING, N.Y., Feb. 9.—Charles McElvaine was electrocuted at 11:26 yesterday. Just as the first current was about to be applied, McElvaine shouted “Let her go!” At that moment the current was turned on and all the sound ceased.

There was a quick convulsive jump of the subject following the application of the current. A livid shadow crept into the hollows of the dying man's faceat the sides of the nose, the lips became purple, the wrists were ashen first and then welts of purple color showed around the edges of the straps. Meanwhile the current, alternating 230 times each second, was beating at the nerve cells and exhausting the oxygen from the blood corpuscles. There was no movement in any part of the entire frame.

“Close!” commanded Dr. McDonald, and the small lever at the switchboard was pushed back to its place and the current was cut off. The hour was 11:12 49 a.m. The power of 1600 volts of electricotive force had been busy 49 seconds with the life centres of the silent, motionless figure.

Not Dead at the First Contact.

Dr. Ward reached down into the cell on the right side of the chair and was feeling for pulse beats, when from the livid lips of the subject there showed an exudation of mucus and almost at the same instant there came from the throat a broken exhalation of air from the lungs, which had thus expelled the last inhalation of air taken in at the last moment as the condemned man nerved himself for the death stroke.

Then came a shorter gasp, which was cut short in a gurgle by the reapparition of the current, which at the moment was flowing at 1500 volts and 10 amperes. Quickly there came to the ears of those nearest the chair the sound of a gentle hiss—steam simultaneously curled up from the electrode on the calf of the bared leg. There was no smell of burnt surface, though a few minutes later and after all was over there hung in the air a suggestion of smoke from burning flesh, probably the result of blistering under the heated water in the electrode.

“Stop!” again ordered Dr. McDonald and the little lever again cut off the current from the subject.

Dr. Wood again advanced and tested the wrists for possible pulse beats. There were none, showing beyond doubt that the man was dead. There came no more tremor of action anywhere, and when the mask on the purple face was loosened the neck re

IMPORTANT RESOLUTION INTRODUCED IN CONGRESS.

Proposed Opening of Negotiations With the Canadian Government to Deepen the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals —Tributaries to the Commerce of the Great Lakes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—An interesting report was yesterday submitted to the House to accompany a resolution reported by instruction of the Committee on Foreign and Inter-State Commerce, requesting the President to negotiate with Canada to secure the speedy improvement of the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals so as to make them conform in depth to the standard adopted by the United States for its improvements within the great lakes.

The report says that the great lakes furnish a highway for the interchange of products that has no parallel in any other country.

No Pent-Up Utica.

Thus far the traffic upon them has been confined almost wholly to the trade with Canada and the internal commerce between the States. The recent development of the untold resources of the great Northwest has, however, made the productions of that region not only a vital part of our internal commerce, but the leading factor of our foreign trade. To facilitate the internal commerce Congress has not hesitated to vote appropriations by millions. Its action in this behalf has met the country's approval. The committee believe that it is now equally important to take the proper steps to secure a deep-water outlet for the foreign commerce originating in states tributary to the great lakes. The impracticability of deepening or improving of the Erie Canal so as to admit the passage of ocean-going crafts, the report says, seems to be admitted on all sides. It is hoped that the claims that it is feasible, however, to construct a deep-water canal from Oswego to the Hudson are well founded, but this, the report says, would require many years for its execution and cost from $40,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Pending this the committee think the great interest involved should be served by other means if available.

THE NEW YORK FIRE.

Portions of Eleven Burned and Blackened Bodies Recovered in the Wreck of the Hotel Royal.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The gruesome work of searching for the blackened corpses of the victims of the fire at the Hotel Royal Sunday was kept up uninterruptedly to-day, and up to midnight the bodies of six victims had been recovered, making the total death list to date eleven.

All the bodies were taken to the Morgue, together with numerous articles that may assist in the identification of the victims.

So far few of the corpses have been recognized. Charles Blake of Stamford, Conn., identified the remains of his sister Sarah, aged 49. A stylishly-dressed woman of dissipated appearance identified one of the bodies as that of an inmate of her establishment, who had left the house in company with Mr. Levy, whose body was found in the ruins. Samuel Cherley, the bell-boy at the Hotel Royal, recognized one body as that of Mrs. Lewis, the bookkeeper's wife, and thinks the remains in box 4 are those of her husband. The body of Housekeeper Begley was recognized by her teeth.

A steam derrick has been put to work on the ruins and the search will be prosecuted all night by the aid of electric lights.

During the night the trunk of a woman was found near the Forty-first-street entrance to the hotel. It was marked "Body No. 12." The legs and arms were gone and nothing was found near it by which it could be identified. Shortly afterwards the laborers found the foot of a human being wedged in under a piano.

There was found in the ruins a black alligator hand-satchel containing a 100-mile ticket on the Long Island Railroad made out in the name of J. H. May. The name of May is not on the hotel register; but it is thought he may have been one of those who registered under a false name.

Mrs. Hattie VanWarden, wife of H. J. VanWarden, manager of the Royal Worcester Corset Co., was undoubtedly among those who perished. Her husband says she had jewels worth $30,000 in her possession.

Another Hotel Burned.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 9.—At 9.30 last night the building No. 230 Main-street, occupied by the Bruse Berne Hat Co., was destroyed by fire, which communicated to Leuberman's Hotel, probably the finest south of the Ohio River, which was destroyed.

The "Ruby" saloon and a large harness factory and another building were also burned. It is thought no lives were lost in the Leuberman Hotel as guests had ample

EXIT, FRED. FITZSIMMONS

THE BROCKVILLE MURDERER BURIED AT NEW ORLEANS.

The Money in His Pockets Paid for the Funeral, Although Mrs. Fitzsimmons and His Canadian Relatives Telegraphed Their Willingness to Bear the Expense.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 9.—In No. 307, second tier of the public vaults of St. Vincent de Paul Cemetery, parish of Orleans, lies all that is mortal of Frederick C. Fitzsimmons. There were no mourners at the funeral, no minister, no flowers, no music but the clinking of the bricklayer's trowel. So was illustrated these words found in the memorandum book of the murderer and suicide:

"Tis the twinkle of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath, From the blossom of health to the paleness of death.

Where the Knife Was Concealed.

The instrument with which Fitzsimmons killed himself is what is known by surgeons as a piton. It is very small, but very sharp, and is capable of cutting up the whole human body without any difficulty. Dr. W. H. Robin, who was the first physician called in to sew up the wounds, told me that the knife had been concealed by Fitzsimmons in his rectum, so that all the usual prison searches in the world would not have revealed its presence. He said that before he left Fitzsimmons he had made an examination which had convinced him of this beyond doubt.

His Unique Funeral.

As Fitzsimmons' murder of Gilkinson was cold-blooded, his escape from jail bold, his hiding for over four months remarkable, and his suicide nervous and mysterious, so was his funeral unique. Captain Journee of the New Orleans police let drop the information that there was $70 cash belonging to Fitzsimmons at headquarters. It was decided to place the remains in a vault, subject to the orders of Fitzsimmons' relatives, there to remain, unless they are ordered elsewhere for one year, and then buried.

In this city it is not possible to dig down more than three feet without striking water, and there are few spots hereabouts where even this is possible. The dead are therefore deposited in the vaults of marble or brick above the ground, which are sealed, numbered and suitably inscribed.

Castoria destroys Worms and relieves feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulence. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

D. G. C. OSCOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

D. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ar.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

the Leuberman Hotel as guests had ample opportunity of escaping before the fire communicated to the hotel.

The loss will foot up in the hundreds of thousands, as the burned portion was the finest building site in town.

Leaped Back Into the Flames.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—A mother, her mother-in-law and her three boys perished in a tenement house fire at Barsinghausen. The house was occupied by four families.

The mother had a chance to save herself without the children, but threw herself back into the flames when she saw them burning.

The mother-in-law tried to carry one of the children out in her arms, but was suffocated by the smoke and perished with the rest of the family.

Eighteen Passengers Cremated on a Turkish Railway Train.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 9.—A first-class carriage attached to an express train bound for Braila was burned last night, and 18 passengers who were asleep when the fire broke out perished in the flames, the doors of the carriage being locked.

Escaped in Their Nightclothes.

GANANOQUE, Ont., Feb. 9.—Fire yesterday morning caused these losses: Grocery store occupied by Robert Fair, loss $1000, fully insured; Robert Leaky's harness shop, loss $1200; building owned by G. Stenden, loss $1700, insurance $1200, and the millinery store and dwelling of Mrs. K. E. Baker, loss $6000, insured for $4100. The inmates barely escaped with their lives in their nightclothes.

Blown Up with the Engine.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—By the explosion of an engine on the Reading Railroad here last night the firemen of the engine, George Reardon, and two unknown boys who were stealing a ride, were killed and five other men injured, one fatally. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

The Baby Burned to Death.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 9.—At Edmonton the residence of J. G. Hamilton was burned to the ground during his absence and his infant children, which he had left there, fatally burned.

A St. John Steamer Lost.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 9.—The capsized schooner Patriot has been towed in here. The fate of the crew is unknown, but it is presumed that they were all lost. The Patriot carried about 5 men, including the captain. The vessel sailed from St. John, N.B., Jan. 25, for New York, lumber laden.

Stole the Township Taxes.

PETROLEA, Ont., Feb. 9.—A satchel containing $500, proceeds of tax collections in Petrolea, was stolen from Tax Collector Thomas Steadman on a G.T.R. car Saturday night by an unknown man. The satchel had been left on the floor at the feet of Steadman's daughter, who accompanied him, and was purloined by the thief while she was looking out of a car window.

Death of Grandma Thompson—Aged 105.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 9.—An interesting character passed away Saturday at Maple Lodge, West Oxford, in the person of Sarah, relict of the late William Thompson, in the 105th year of her age. The death of this centenarian was of course not unexpected, but up to a few days ago Grandma Thompson, as she was familiarly called, was as healthy and active as a woman of 80.

or brick above the ground, which are sealed, numbered and suitably inscribed. The cemetery of St. Vincent de Paul is a Catholic institution owned by Mrs. Manuel Surace. It contains the bodies of many thousands. Fitzsimmons was deposited in the commonest kind of a vault, such as rents for a year at $20. At the end of that time the bones of the deceased are removed, placed in a box and buried in a shallow grave in another part of the cemetery enclosure.

The Last Chapter.

It was 3.30 o'clock when the funeral procession left the doors of the prison. The body had been sewn together, the gashes in the neck closed, and the remains dressed in a neat silk-faced shroud, with collar, tie and cuffs of the most approved funeral style. The coffin was of imitation cherry, with imitation silver mountings. Upon the lid was the customary "Rest in Peace," and upon the head a large cross. Four vagrants bore the remains from the hospital ward through the long corridors and down the winding steps of the prison to the hearse, pushed it into place, slammed the door to and then trotted back within the prison walls to finish their 90 days each. The hearse was of the finest, tastefully draped with crepe. The undertaker started off on the two mile drive to the cemetery at a lively pace.

Upon arrival at the cemetery a brick-layer quickly pulled out the loose bricks with which the opening to the vault had been closed, while a hodcarrier hurried away to the mortar-box for a barrow of mortar. There was two minutes' delay waiting for this, and then, without a word, a prayer, hymn or benediction, the coffin containing the dead desperado was thrust into the vault. In two minutes more the vault door had been bricked in and the bricks faced with a coating of cement. Somebody remarked that at last Fitzsimmons was in a prison from which no saw could save him and no knife release him, and the funeral was over.

From His Wife and Home.

Just about that time Chief of Police Gaster received the following message from Chief of Police Rose of Brockville, Ont.:

Are you sure it's Fitzsimmons? If so, hold the body and answer me immediately. You will hear from me soon as I get reply. Any expense incurred will be paid by me.

Chief Gaster replied that the body had already been buried properly, but that the relatives could have it if they desired. Later a telegram stating that Mrs. Fitzsimmons would authorize the expenditure of $150 to secure a proper burial was received.

Fraud and Sentiment.

Coroner Lemmonier made an examination of Fitzsimmons' effects this afternoon. Among other things he found two sets of dice and what is known as a "spiel" dollar. The latter is a bogus silver dollar with a false head side to it, into which the dollar proper fits. An expert in crooked devices like Fitzsimmons could so manipulate the thing when "heads" were described as to win on every throw he made.

The lock of little Lucy Fitzsimmons' hair, wrapped in chamois skin, was opened. About it was a bit of paper, upon which was the following writing by Fitzsimmons:

The world may lose its motion,
Bright heaven may cease to be;
The storm may rule the ocean,
But I'll never prove false to thee.

The little book also contained many miscellaneous slippings and countless quotations on all manner of themes, including Robert G. Ingersoll's eulogy at the burial of his brother. On a page by itself was this in Fitzsimmons' handwriting:

"I'm hard to venture where our betters fall,
Or lend fresh interest to a twice-told tale."

Fake Jewelry and Weapons.

In the valise which the police had found was a lot of jewelry purchased by Fitzsimmons in Chicago and St. Louis. There were two dozen watches, two dozen chains, three dozen rings with settings and a great bundle of collar buttons, studs, rings, etc. It was all of the fake gold variety. It was Fitzsimmons' scheme to sell the stuff among the negroes in the Byrd Tech country near here. The bills for the goods showed that they had cost about $125. There were two big Colt's revolvers and the most murderous-looking clasp knife imaginable. This weapon had a blade on it fully five inches long, which sprang open at the touch of a spring, and was ground to a razor edge.

The Lawyer Opens His Will.

Fitzsimmons' lawyer, Richardson, opened Fitzsimmons' will, which had been sealed and directed to William and C. H. Fitzsimmons and David B. Jones, Brockville, as executors. It merely bequeathed his estate to his wife during her lifetime.

The Winter Care of Cows.

Is it of any advantage to turn the cows into the woods to pick up a portion of their food, not only during the winter, but at any season of the year? A calculation of the value of the milk produced by a cow that is given abundant pasturage and a liberal supply of grain, compared with the yield of a cow that is turned out on the abandoned field to secure what she can, will demonstrate that the well-fed cow more than pays the difference in the food received, and yields a much larger profit in proportion to cost than any other. It is unprofitable to keep any animal unless it is carefully attended to.

Fertilizers in Gardens.

It is a subject for discussion whether fertilizers or manure should be used in the garden. Commercial fertilizers are free from seeds, and carry no impurities to the soil. Manure on grain, or in orchards, is serviceable with less injury than in the garden, where the crops are roots, or grow a short distance above ground. Fresh, unrotted manure is certainly very fitting material for a garden but it is of course

—It is earnestly to be hoped that the improved weather, of which we had a sample for the past few days, will continue for some time to come. The obituary columns of the papers during the last three or four weeks certainly indicate that such improved weather is urgently needed. The number of deaths, especially of the old and feeble, has been unprecedentedly large, and it is undoubtedly a fact that the unseasonable weather has been in a great measure the indirect cause of the most of these deaths.

The prominent place which the weather has in our thought and conversation is often made the subject of jocose remark. But when we reflect how great an influence it really has on our lives, we can hardly be blamed for attaching so much importance to it, especially if we accept the theory, put forth by the Hon. John G. Haggart and other social philosophers, that the Canadian type of character is largely the product of Canadian weather.

terial for a garden, but it is, of course, changed in composition before the plants mature. The difficulty is that manure sometimes contains matter that has been thrown on the heap from diseased persons or animals, and for that reason it is considered better to haul it to the fields than apply it to the garden crops.

Crisp Farm Notes.

As a rule, farmers neglect to supply themselves with a sufficient amount of good reading, too, that they cannot afford it. Undoubtedly many cannot afford it, but they economize in this direction first and are forgetful of economy in certain other directions. —G. M. Pettit.

Get rid of the fences! These words should be placed at the head of every page of the agricultural papers until public opinion is completely stirred to action. Unnecessary fences are a most odious tax on farmers. They represent a condition of semi-barbarism, in which each man is obliged to fortify himself against his neighbors. —New York Tribune.

The seed potatoes for next season require some attention. Every potato that shows the slightest indication of disease should be removed. The seed is the agency by which many diseases are spread.

Stop My Paper,

After you get angry and make up your mind to stop your paper, just poke your finger into water and then pull it out, and look for the hole. Then you know how sadly you are missed. A man who thinks a paper can't survive without his support ought to go off and stay awhile. When he comes back he will find that half his friends know he was gone and the other half didn't care a cent, and the world at large did not keep any account of his movements.

. You will find things you cannot endorse in every paper. Even the Bible is rather plain and hits some hard licks. If you were to get mad and burn your Bible the hundreds of presses would go on printing more; and if you were to stop your paper and call the editor all sorts of ugly names, the paper would still be published and what is more you'd sneak around and borrow a copy of it every day from your neighbor. It would be much better to keep your vest pulled down and your subscription paid in advance.—Berlin News.

M. Longmore, John Farley, J. R. Fraser, P. F. Caiscallen, and others. Miss Mary Hawley and Mrs. J. Gandler will give their report as delegates to the Provincial Association, and addresses will be given on important subjects by A. L. Morden, Q. C. Mrs. Thos. Symington, Rev. J. Gandler, A. W. Grange, Rev. J. C. Seymour, G. M. Elliott, Esq., Rev. H. I. Allen, Mr. Alfred Day and others. The meetings will be intensely interesting to Sabbath School workers, and all interested in their self-denying labors, and there should be a large attendance.

Presentation.

On Saturday evening last at the Napanee Presbyterian, the Rev. Father Hogan was the recipient of a very handsome present from the members of his congregation of a Persian lamb coat. The address appended speaks for itself:

To REV. FATHER HOGAN:

Reverend and dear Father—We, on behalf of your congregation, beg your acceptance of this coat as a slight expression of the loving esteem in which your people hold you. We trust it may be our privilege to see you wear it in health and happiness for many years, and that it will do its part in making your duties less severe. We hope also to respect and affection of your congregation, which has been yours since the day you came among us, and be in some sort a recompense for your pastoral kindness and care. Signed on behalf of the congregation.

J. P. HANLEY, M. J. BUTLER,
E. M. GURN, JOHN MCKENTY,

The Rev. Father made a suitable reply in a few choice words, thanking the donors for their beautiful and useful gift.

Collegiate Institute.
The regular meeting of the Literary Society was held last Friday, the president Mr A Embury, occupying the chair. The following programme was presented:

Chorus ..... Glee Club .....
Essay ..... Miss Julia Miller .....
Instrumental Solo ..... Miss Valleau .....
Recitation ..... Miss Aylsworth .....
Vocal Duet ..... Mr W. and Miss R. Exley .....
Address ..... Dr Ward .....
Paper ..... C. B. Fox .....
Recitation ..... Miss Eva Miller .....
Instrumental Solo ..... Miss Whealan .....
Chorus ..... Glee Club .....

The programme was very interesting and did great credit to the society. We might mention as being particularly worthy of notice, the vocal duet by Mr and Miss Exley which was admirably rendered; the essay, "Honesty is the Best Policy" by Miss Julia Miller and the recitation by Miss Eva Miller. The paper for this week was also very interesting and the editors
are to be congratulated upon the success
they have made of the paper.

On Wednesday night the large workshop
of Gibbard & Son was totally destroyed by fire. The firemen worked like trojans and behaved like heroes, and succeeded in saving surrounding property to a great extent.
Mr. Bennett, one of Gibbard's employees, and a member of the fire brigade was struck on the hip by part of a falling "bent" and was severely hurt, but it is hoped not enough to have any lasting effect. There was a strong south wind and the flames, sparks, and smoke drifted away over a block of wooden buildings, which were in imminent
jeopardy of being destroyed for some time.
Fire broke out in various places among these buildings, but was subdued by the firemen. At one time, when the conflagration was at its worst, the streets of Napanee seemed just as they do soon after day break
when the sun is about to appear above the horizon. There is a strong feeling of sympathy for Messrs. Gibbard in their loss, which amounts to $12,000. The insurance is $2,000. It is thought Mr. Gibbard may utilize the brush factory for a time, to continue operations, but nothing is definitely settled, Mr. Gibbard having to mourn the loss of his relative Mr. Anderson, and attend the funeral, to-day, Thursday.

Presbyterian Church Concert.
On Friday evening last was held the childrens entertainment in the Presbyterian church. The usual Christmas Entertainment had to be postponed on account of the Induction of the new Pastor and other circumstances so that it was not held until Friday, however a rare treat was given them in the way of lime light views, after which followed probably the most attractive part of the programme for them, namely the ESTATES. The Views were of the great and beautiful sights of the wonderful city of London and were exceedingly fine, so arranged and well described as to make a lasting impression on the mind. Buckingham palace, both externally and internally illustrated, Westminster abbey shewing the Tombs of Kings, Queens, Poets and statesmen, The Tower of London, with its saxon architecture; House of Lords, with its grandeur and magnificence; The Chapel of St Peters, that sad and intensely interesting spot; and many more. Beside historical places, were introduced several personages such as that "Grand Old Man" Mr. Gladstone and of the Royal family, pictures to illustrate the Society of London from Rotten Row down to the wharf rats. Some pretty effect pictures were also woven in and to conclude a few conundrums were given which were filled with wit and meaning—I cannot refrain from mentioning one "What is a Muff" answer—A thing that holds a ladies hand without squeezing it.

The snow is not very deep and it is easy to get about the woods. Most of the farmers have some wood lots, through which there is some fallen timber, which it would pay well to gather up, not only to give more room for grass, etc., but to save a quantity of material which is going to waste and which would go a long way during the coming summer to keep them in firewood. There are vast quantities of valuable wood going to waste annually in this district. Every sound tree saved at the present time will in a few years be worth a handsome sum, hence the necessity of strict economy in this matter. Get out the wood now and have a good stock in hand during

In Paris alone last year there were 21,156 horses, mules and donkeys used as food. These weighed 4,615 tons and sold at from 4 cents to 20 cents per lb. About one-third was sold fresh and the rest was made into sausages. Is there not a chance here for an export trade?

A firm of London furriers has advertised for 30,000 cat skins. Not only will this prove a serious matter for pussy at home, but it will result in a development of the cat farms, which started years ago in Algiers. Grimalkin suddenly assumes a position of great importance in the furrier world, and his career as a family pet may be regarded as ended for the time being.

By looking at the quotations of the Virginia tobacco markets it will be found that the highest price paid for "fillers"—which is the tobacco which forms the body of the plug—very closely corresponds with the invoiced price of tobacco leaf imported into Ontario. As over four-fifths of all the leaf imported into the Province is for "Myrtle Navy" stock, this fact is official proof of the claim that the "Myrtle Navy" is made of the finest Virginia leaf.

Humor has it that Blake has determined to re-enter the House of Commons not as a follower of Laurier or a supporter of the policy of the opposition, but as an independent Liberal. It is said that he proposes striking out on a new line of policy, and that he will freely express his opinions and convictions on all public questions wholly regardless of the consequences to either of the old parties.

The five million dollar canal job carried Soulanges County for the Government the other day. It was indeed a "buy" election. Imagine the whole power of the federal government and the monopolists concentrated in a county slightly larger than a town township of Gloucester. And yet it was necessary to undertake the expenditure of five millions of dollars in building a canal through the county before the return of the ministerial candidate could be secured. The voice of the county was stifled, and the defeat of Dr. Mouse by such circumstances, is no use. In the face of overpowering odds, he made a plucky fight, and will rally the county at an early day. When was in Ottawa a few days ago that the Conservatives had gained by the revision of the electoral law, he failed to hold his increasing majority in the county is given.
